

Her Majesty's Crown Prosecution Service Inspectorate (HMCPsi) has today published its performance assessment of the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) London, Greenwich borough.

This is one of a planned series of borough performance assessments of the units in CPS London. Reports on nine have been published today and those on a further ten boroughs, the traffic unit and an overarching report on CPS London as a whole will be published in March.

The overall performance assessment of Greenwich was POOR.

The table below provides a breakdown of the assessed level of performance against the ten aspects:

Aspect	Score	Assessment
Pre-charge advice and decisions	2	Fair
Decision-making, preparation and progression in magistrates' court cases	0	Poor
Decision-making, preparation and progression in Crown Court cases	0	Poor
The prosecution of cases at court	2	Fair
Serious violent and sexual offences, and hate crimes	0	Poor
Disclosure	0	Poor
Custody time limits	3	Good
The service to victims and witnesses	0	Poor
Managing performance to improve	2	Fair
Managing resources	Not scored
Management and partnership working	2	Fair
OVERALL ASSESSMENT	11	POOR

The handling of casework was very mixed with inspectors having some concerns over the quality of decision-making. The prosecution of cases at court was also variable with some advocacy not up to the required standard. Systems for managing custody time limits operated well.

The proportion of magistrates' court cases which resulted in a successful outcome in the 12 months to June 2009 (83.0%) was lower than that for CPS London overall (85.9%) and nationally (87.3%). The proportion of successful cases in the Crown Court (78.2%), although below the national average (80.6%), was better than London's overall performance (72.7%) and improving.

Overall inspectors found that the borough needed to improve several aspects of its work most notably the preparation of contested magistrates' court cases, the identification of appropriate measures to assist victims and witnesses give evidence, and compliance with the prosecution's obligation to disclose unused material to the defence.

Performance management was being developed jointly with police but had not yet translated into improved outcomes. Although there had been some progress significant weaknesses in decision-making and management of magistrates' court and Crown Court cases generally, and serious cases in particular, remain to be addressed.

The borough has cultivated good working relationships with its criminal justice partners. It was planning the move to co-location with police and integrated prosecution team working at the time of the assessment.

Stephen Wooler, HM Chief Inspector of the CPS, said:

“The assessment of overall poor performance reflects weaknesses in important aspects of the prosecution casework. These are due in some respects to the difficult circumstances in which the borough has worked while having to implement a number of pan-London and national initiatives with increasing resource constraints. It is to the credit of staff that they have remained supportive of each other during this period of change. There are some positive signs of progress but it is essential for the borough to achieve a sustained improvement in decision-making and case management across the board with a particular focus on serious violent and sexual offences and hate crime.”

This press release should be read in conjunction with the executive summary which is attached.

Notes to editors

- 1 HMCPSI was established as an independent statutory body on 1 October 2000 by the Crown Prosecution Service Inspectorate Act 2000. The Chief Inspector is appointed by, and reports to, the Attorney General.
- 2 The pilot performance assessment of Croydon borough, published in May 2009, was the first of a planned series of performance assessments of the individual borough units in CPS London.
- 3 There are 33 geographical units based on London boroughs and the cities of London and Westminster. CPS London also has a dedicated traffic unit and a complex casework centre which handles serious and complex cases and those at the Central Criminal Court (Old Bailey). CPS London provides advice to police and charging decisions through a telephone service, CPS London Direct, or where a face-to-face meeting is needed through the local borough units. The units are gathered into six districts based on Crown Court centres.
- 4 The assessment process provides a benchmark for the performance of the boroughs in ten key aspects of work, each of which is assessed as being excellent, good, fair or poor. The unit is then assessed on its overall performance in the light of these markings. The process also evaluates the management of resources at borough level.
- 5 The scoring mechanism is described in annex C of the report. This provides some limiters that apply in addition to the total of points scored. This is because of the significant impact that some aspects will have on the delivery of the borough’s core business, or because of the impact of a number of poor aspects.

- 6 The assessment included examination of finalised case files; interviews with representatives of partner criminal justice agencies and the judiciary; discussions with borough staff; observations at the office; and observations at the magistrates' court and Crown Court.
- 7 The findings from the assessments undertaken will be drawn together in a pan-CPS London report. As well as providing an overall picture of the area, this will address the issues that have emerged as the assessments have progressed. Some of these were of serious concern and need to be tackled urgently at a senior management level.
- 8 HMCPSI's original intention had been to assess all 33 boroughs in order to reflect the variations in performance which were expected across an area as diverse as CPS London, and this approach was endorsed by the area's senior managers. In the event findings from the early assessments showed a relatively narrow range of performance and consistency in the themes emerging and the aspects for improvement. London's senior management team confirmed that the boroughs which had been assessed were fairly representative of the area as a whole and that to undertake further assessments would be unlikely to add significantly to our findings. The inspectorate therefore decided to confine the exercise to 20 boroughs (including the pilot assessment of Croydon), drawn from five of the six districts, together with the traffic unit.
